

thrillist

Try the next viral food before anyone else

Weekend-long

SoHo

In NYC, you may think we've got every pizza style imaginable already. Luckily for us, that's not the case: new pizzeria Coco Pizzeria is now selling buzzetti, mini, open-faced calzones that look as adorable on IG as they do in real life. The bite-size wonders come in four flavors, ranging from a zippy Gorgonzola and Italian ham, to a cheesy black truffle and broccoli rabe. Don't miss their regular pizza either: the restaurant is owned by the legendary Pino Luongo, who does wonders with all Italian food.

Cost: $10 per buzzetti; pizza from $18